The Corbin Community

Corbin is a close-knit community located in Southeastern Kentucky. Although the geographical setting is considered rural, Corbin maintains attributes of an urban setting, serving as a hub where education, industry, and families form the largest community in Southeastern Kentucky.

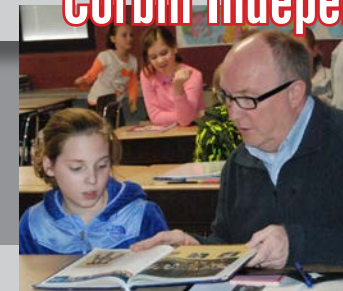

Corbin serves the tri-county area of Whitley, Knox, and Laurel Counties, with a centralized population of 21,132. The city is located off Interstate I-75 providing easy access to major cities such as Lexington, Kentucky and Knoxville, Tennessee.

Corbin is a favorite destination for outdoor adventures. The city is located amid the beauty of the Daniel Boone National Forest, by Laurel Lake, and is home to the "Niagara of the South" at Cumberland Falls State Resort Park. The area hosts white water rafting, nature trails, fishing, horseback riding, scenic beauty, and wildlife.

Recently, Corbin was chosen by Keeneland to be the home for a quarter-horse track and entertainment venue. Corbin has also recently added numerous restaurants and shopping to the area.
